> Two Correspondents And Ex-Sea Captain Aboard Seized Yacht

LONDON, Sept. 12 (A) - Two American newsmen and a former sea captain, held in Communist China for more than a year, have been deported, Peiping Radio said

They are Richard Applegate, Hong Kong correspondent of the National Broadcasting Co., Donald Dixon, International News Service correspondent, and Benjamin Krasner, former sea captain.

The Communist broadcast said the Chinese Ministry of Public Security recently ordered their deportation and confiscation of their American yacht "Kert," instructing local public security authorities in the province of Kwantung to carry out the order. There was no indication when or where the three were released.

The broadcast said Applegate. Dixon and Krasner were aboard the yacht March 21, 1953, when it 'intruded into China's territorial waters off Kwantung." They were taken into custody by a coastal

Tiny Isle Necessary To Formosa Defense

DENVER, Sept. 12 (A)-Secretary of State Dulles conferred with President Eisenhower today and declared afterward he is convinced the Chinese Communists could not possibly conquer Formosa against "such opposition" as the United States would throw up.

Dulles, who had a private conference with Eisenhower at the summer White House shortly after arriving from the Communisttroubled Far East, was pressed at a news conference as to whether this government considers American defense of the Chinese Nationalist island of Quemoy, near the mainland, as essential to defense of Nationalist Formosa.

"The defense of Quemoy is primarily related to the defense of Formosa and it is being considered and studied in that light," the secretary replied. But he repeatedly-declined to

Two Correspondents And Ex-Sea Captain Aboard Seized Yacht

LONDON, Sept. 12 M - Two American newsmen and a former sea captain, held in Communist China for more than a year, have been deported, Peiping Radio said

They are Richard Applegate, Hong Kong correspondent of the National Broadcasting Co., Donald Dixon, International News Service correspondent, and Benjamin Krasner, former sea captain.

The Communist broadcast said the Chinese Ministry of Public Security recently ordered their deportation and confiscation of their American yacht "Kert," instructing local public security authorities in the province of Kwantung to carry out the order. There was no indication when or where the three were released.

The broadcast said Applegate Dixon and Krasner were aboard the yacht March 21, 1953, when it 'intruded into China's territorial waters off Kwantung." They were taken into custody by a coastal Central Figure waters off Kwantung." They were In FHA Scandal

War Veterans Group To Hold Breakfast Event

The annual communion breakfast of Victor J. Tambolleo Post 1712. Catholic War Veterans, will be held Sunday, October 17, at St. Mary's Church, according to James L. King, post commander.

Noting that the annual project will be in the form of a Marian Year pilgrimage, Commander King said the post will attend the 9 a.m. mass, with the breakfast to follow in the basement of the church.

A feaure of the breakfast will be the presentation of both CWV and American flags to the post by Nicola Tambolleo, 409 Prince George Street, father of the sailor who was the first local fatality of World War II and for whom the post is named.

Seven speakers have been scheduled for this year's season of the Cumberland National Dinner Club.

Leading the list will be Sigmund Spaeth, the "Tune Detective," who will appear at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club Tuesday, October 19.

He has been featured on Sunday broadcasts of the Metropolitan Opera for several years and is the author of original lyrics for such hits as "Donkey Serenade," "Down South" and "My Little Nest." He was here once before under auspices of the Community Forum and proved tremendously popular. Tuesday, November 16, the

Need Treatment Too

America's physical health has been steadily improving during this century. Even the increase in cancer and circulatory disease can be explained on the ground that most of those so afflicted are older persons who would probably have died younger if they had been born 50 years earlier. But it is doubtful whether there has been any improvement in mental health. Mental health may even be getting worse.

The reason is not far to seek. People take physical illness seriously, get it treated early, and persist with the treatment, but many act as if mental illness were a disgrace or a crime rather than a disease. Most people avoid treatment, or don't persist with it. Americans shy off from diagnosis, prevention, and public health measures in this field.

mental health appears to have been at least partly responsible for the shocking series of teenage gang beatings and killings in Brooklyn recently. Four youths have been charged with amusing themselves attacking park vagrants and beating them up; two of their victims died. All came of respectable families, not particularly poverty-stricken. The victims were

The oldest of the four and allegedly the ringleader was 18. Now it has been revealed that he had been mentally disturbed and incorrigible at home and in school at the age of 7, and went for treatment to the Bureau of Child Guidance. But after four treatments the mother decided that she did not wish them

Expense was not a major factor in this decision, but simply, it is assumed, a feeling that mental illness was less real, somehow, than physical illness. The boy had good parents, as parents go. If he had had polio and family finances permitted, they would never have flouted medical advice and refused to let him be treated. Because his trouble was mental, it was neglected. The chance to prevent tragedy both to his recent victims and to the boy himself was passed up.

How many parents will make a similar mistake

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Wagner, now mayor of New York City, extraordinarily popular among Republicans as well as Democrats, who race, and to replace him with a takes the position that he does not want the nomination. Roosevelt or Wagner would be tough to beat but Harriman

United States senator, an affable personality, acceptable to the conservative and so-called liberal branches of his party. He will have the support of Dewey, for what this is now worth, but he will not be burdened by the Dewey liabilities, by which is meant that Taft Republicans would not have voted for Dewey, either supporting a Democrat or staying away from the polls. Outside of New York State, it is not always understood that there is a sizable number of so-called Taft Republicans in this state as there was at the time of the 1952 convention.

The State of New York is no longer a vast agriculture area appended to a metropolis. The upstate cities have developed in population and importance and in them, the Democrats have not been without notable successes in recent years. It is impossible therefore at this stage to make any guesses as to the outcome of the election.

Thomas E. Dewey has given the State of New York an efficient competent and respected administration. He was elected three times because he deserved re-election. His efforts to become president, however, weakened his position within his own state and in the Republican party

He combined the support of the Rockefellers with the support of the American Federation of Labor. After a prolonged stay in office, he completely controlled his party organization and tolerated no independence. He had succeeded in suppressing all other leadership in the Republican party in the state, and ruthlessly fired his own associates when they got out of line. He reduced the Dewey's ruthlessness because it meant the elimination of corruption and indecency. The party prided itself on its "gang-buster" governor. After a while, this attitude became tiresome, particularly as the Dewey group, among whom were many out-staters, built machines of their own which took on the characteristics of a well-entrenched bossism. There have been recent evidences of corruption among close Dewey associates, which perhaps is inevitable among those who remain in office too long. The governor, it must be said, was untouched by the charges.

Since his 1948 defeat for the presidency, Thomas E. Dewey has become a very difficult personality. That defeat came as a great shock to him, from which he ever recovered. His bitterness toward the conservative branch of his own party became so deep-seated that men who had been his friends turned from him in distress. He blamed them rather than himself for his defeat. His antagonism to Robert A. Taft was boundless and stirred even some of his supporters to remonstrance. To Taft, rational explanation.

Dewey is not likely to remain long out of politics. He is not a wealthy man, having always lived on his salary, with no other source of income except for the milk which he sells on his mortgaged farm. His personal honesty is beyond question. Undoubtedly, his outstanding administrative and legal ability will find lucrative uses.

Adm. Carney Tries To Persuade Italy To Abandon Its Separate Air Force

WASHINGTON - Though Congress passed a law unifying the armed services, an amazing secret document has just come to light undercutting the Air Force in foreign countries Adm. Robert Carney, now chief of naval operations, actually laid down a virtual ultimatum to the Italian minister of defense that Italy change its air force law and set up a naval air detachment separate from the Italian air force. Unless Italy did so, Admiral Carney as much as warned, she would get no naval planes from the American Navy and no helicopters from the American Army.

The interesting thing is that when Admiral Carney called upon Defense Minister Rudolfo Pacciardi he took with him his yeoman, who, wanting to be efficient, made verbatim notes of the conversation. Later he typed up the notes and filed the transcript.

Admiral Carney, obviously embarrassed at this record of his highly unusual conversation, could not have destroyed the transcript even if he wanted to. It had already been filed, and to destroy such a government document would be highly unethical. So the embarrassing document was stamped "top secret."

Actually the transcript involves no military secrets, but rather the use of the taxpayers' money, since it is the United States which pays for the planes and any carrier sent to Italy. Also of interest to the taxpayers is the manner in which the U.S. Navy is ignoring a mandate of Congress to combine in joint operations with the U.S.

New Jersey's Rep. Case Viewed As Unusual Politician

NEWARK, N. J.

Rep. Clifford Case, who is running for the Senate on the Republicar. ticket in New Jersey, is a most unusual politician. He is unusual for a number of reasons, but especially because he is one of the have bothered to think seriously about American politics.

For Case has become the whipping boy of the neanderthal wing of the Republican party. A number splinter groups, the most conspicuous being the ironically named "Committee for a Stronger New Jersey Republican Party," have been organized here.

The ostensible purpose of these groups is to force Case out of the "real Republican" candidate. As a practical matter, this is quite obviously out of the question. Thus the real purpose is to defeat Case, and so to achieve at least the power of absolute veto in the New Jersey Republican party, at the cost of an extra Democratic seat in the Senate.,

Much Harm Done

To this end, New Jersey Republicans have been deluged with "literature" flagrantly distorting Case's record, and portraying him as a radical. Most of the distortions and outright untruths have been exposed by Case headquarters here. But meanwhile, the New Jersey Republican organization has been thrown into an uproar, and much harm has been

At this point, Admiral Carney baldly threatened the Italian defense minister that he would get no Navy planes unless he changed the Italian law regarding the separate air force. Furthermore, Carney took the amazing step of making the same threat on behaif of the Army. The conversation continued:

Mental Illnesses Need Treatment Too

America's physical health has been steadily improving during this century. Even the increase in cancer and circulatory disease can be explained on the ground that most of those so afflicted are older persons who would probably have died younger if they had been born 50 years earlier. But it is doubtful whether there has been any improvement in mental health. Mental health may even be getting worse.

The reason is not far to seek. People take physical illness seriously, get it treated early, and persist with the treatment, but many act as if mental illness were a disgrace or a crime rather than a disease. Most people avoid treatment, or don't persist with it. Americans shy off from diagnosis, prevention, and public health measures in this field.

This difference in the handling of physical and mental health appears to have been at least partly responsible for the shocking series of teenage gang beatings and killings in Brooklyn recently. Four youths have been charged with amusing themselves attacking park vagrants and beating them up; two of their victims died. All came of respectable families, not particularly poverty-stricken. The victims were not robbed.

The oldest of the four and allegedly the ringleader was 18. Now it has been revealed that he had been mentally disturbed and incorrigible at home and in school at the age of 7, and went for treatment to the Bureau of Child Guidance. But after four treatments the mother decided that she did not wish them

Expense was not a major factor in this decision, but simply, it is assumed, a feeling that mental illness was less real, somehow, than physical illness. The boy had good parents, as parents go. If he had had polio and family finances permitted, they would never have flouted medical advice and refused to let him be treated. Because his trouble was mental, it was neglected. The chance to prevent tragedy both to his recent victims and to the boy himself was passed up. How many parents will make a similar mistake

Exit Mr. Dewey

The unwillingness of Thomas E. Dewey to run for a fourth term as governor of New York encourages the Democrats to believe that they might be able to add to this state which domiciles about 10 per cent of the population of the United States. Three candidates appear among the Democrats: Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., who all along had a lead; Averell Harriman, who represents the ADA element in the Democratic party; and Robert F. Wagner, now mayor of New York City, extraordinarily popular among Republicans as well as Democrats, who takes the position that he does not want the nomination. Roosevelt or Wagner would be tough to beat but Harriman may be the compromise.

The Republican candidate will be Irving M. Ives, now United States senator, an affable personality, acceptable to the conservative and so-called liberal branches of his party. He will have the support of Dewey, for what this is now worth, but he will not be burdened by the Dewey liabilities, by which is meant that Taft Republicans would not have voted for Dewey, either supporting a Democrat or staying away from the polls. Outside of New York State, it is not always understood that there is a sizable number of so-called Taft Republicans in this state as there was at the time of the 1952 convention.

The State of New York is no longer a vast agriculture area appended to a metropolis. The upstate cities have developed in population and importance and in them, the Democrats have not been without notable successes in recent years. It is impossible therefore at this stage to make any guesses as to the outcome of the election.

Thomas E. Dewey has given the State of New York an efficient competent and respected administration. He was elected three times because he deserved re-election. His efforts to become president, however, weakened his position within his own state and in the Republican party because it made him a target for personal attack and partisan vindictiveness. Dewey's political methods suited

New York: they could not be applied on a national scale. He combined the support of the Rockefellers with the support of the American Federation of Labor. After a prolonged stay in office, he completely controlled his party organization and tolerated no independence. He had succeeded in suppressing all other leadership in the Republican party in the state, and ruthlessly fired his own associates when they got out of line. He reduced the Republican party in his state to a personal organ.

For a while, Republicans were satisfied with Dewey's ruthlessness because it meant the elimination of corruption and indecency. The party prided itself on its "gang-buster" governor. After a while, this attitude became tiresome, particularly as the Dewey group, among whom were many out-staters, built machines of their own which took on the characteristics of a well-entrenched bossism. There have been recent evidences of corruption among close Dewey associates, which perhaps is inevitable among those who remain in office too long. The governor, it must be said, was untouched by the charges.

Since his 1948 defeat for the presidency, Thomas E. Dewey has become a very difficult personality. That defeat came as a great shock to him, from which he ever recovered. His bitterness toward the conservative ranch of his own party became so deep-seated that men who had been his friends turned from him in distress. He blamed them rather than himself for his defeat. His antagonism to Robert A. Taft was boundless and stirred even some of his supporters to remonstrance. To Taft, it was beyond understanding and on more than one occasion, he inquired as to its cause. Nobody had a rational explanation.

Dewey is not likely to remain long out of politics. He is not a wealthy man, having always lived on his salary, with no other source of income except for the milk which he sells on his mortgaged farm. His personal honesty is beyond question. Undoubtedly, his outstanding administrative and legal ability will find lucrative uses.

But anyone who knows Dewey at all must recognize that money cannot ever satisfy his ego. He needs the excitement, the applause, the battle of politics and he will return to it when he can do it on a national scale. If I judge his psychology correctly, he will never forget it. Adm. Carney Tries To Persuade Italy To Abandon Its Separate Air Force

WASHINGTON - Though Congress passed a law unifying the armed services, an amazing secret document has just come to light showing that the Navy is even undercutting the Air Force in foreign countries.

Adm. Robert Carney, now chief of naval operations, actually laid down a virtual ultimatum to the Italian minister of defense that Italy change its air force law and set up a naval air detachment separate from the Italian air force. Unless Italy did so, Admiral Carney as much as warned, she would get no naval planes from the American Navy and no helicopters from the American Army.

The interesting thing is that when Admiral Carney called upon Defense Minister Rudolfo Pacciardi he took with him his yeoman, who, wanting to be efficient, made verbatim notes of the conversation. Later he typed up the notes and filed the transcript.

Admiral Carney, obviously embarrassed at this record of his highly unusual conversation, could not have destroyed the transcript even if he wanted to. It had already been filed, and to destroy a government document would be highly unethical. So the embarrassing document was stamped "top secret."

Actually the transcript involves no military secrets, but rather the use of the taxpayers' money, since it is the United States which pays for the planes and any carrier sent to Italy. Also of interest to the taxpayers is the manner in which the U. S. Navy is ignoring a mandate of Congress to combine in joint operations with the U.S.

North answered with 1-No Trump, South might then bid a suit of his own or take a chance on clubs being stopped and raise to a No Trump game, which would not be too risky.

Suppose North passed the 1-Club because he was so weak. Wouldn't the opponents then be likely to overcall such an easy bid, whereupon South could make a takeout double? In other words, the 1-Club fits every situation likely to develop.

Today's Special 1950 FORD F-6 Cab and Chassis

This is for you! A better-thanaverage truck with 2-speed rear axle. The condition of the body is excellent and the motor is even better. For a workhorse don't miss it! And when you buy a used truck you want good rubber - this one has it with dual wheels. In fact, we feel there 's no better truck at the price in this territory.

Moscow Miner Dies Instantly In Auto Mishap

Driver Of Vehicle Will Be Questioned

A 52-year-old Moscow coal miner, was killed instantly early yesterday morning when he was struck by an automobile as he walked across State Route 36 at Authorities identified the victim as Charles Junior Beeman. He was pronounced dead at the scene by Dr. R. J. Williams, acting medical examiner for Allegany County, who said the victim died of abdominal injuries, a deep laceration of the right side of his scalp and fractures of his legs and arms.

Driver of the vehicle, according to Maryland State Police, was Donald Lee Festerman, 20, of RD 2, Frostburg.

To Be Questioned

Following the accident he was released in the custody of his parents and will be questioned this morning in the State's Attorney's office, according to Trooper First Class Milton G. Hart.

Police said Beeman came out of a tavern in Pekin and was walking along the highway about 12:10 a. m. when the accident occurred.

A car was reported traveling south toward Westernport and the victim, according to police, walked onto the highway as the vehicle passed by and into the path of the with a companion.

was hurled onto the hood of the car and out onto the highway against a nearby fence. Death was instantaneous.

Festerman recently was disenrolled in Beall High School to complete his studies.

Was Unemployed

The victim, a coal miner, had been out of work, palice said, and had been doing odd jobs in the Moscow area. He was a son of the late Charles and Marion (Nichol) Beeman and was a native of Moscow, Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Silas Shriver, Moscow: Mrs. Eldridge Guy, Westemport; three brothers, Howard Beeman, Moscow; Clarence Beeman, Eckhart and Nickle Beeman, Connellsville, Pa.

The body is at the Eichhorn Funeral Home in Lonaconing, where a service will be conducted tomorrow at 2 p. m. Rev. Joseph Young, Methodist minister, will officiate, and interment will be in Laurel Hill Cemetery.

Pallbearers will be Raymond Taylor, Benjamin Hyde, Olan Mc-Cutcheon, James Dohme, William Shaw and Alban Hyde.
